Formatting Matters

- Short, easy to read paragraphs and sentences
- Use consistent and appropriate fonts, colours, and sizes
- Use headings to organize information
- Use bulleted or numbered lists
- Visually appealing
 - Don't indent text
 - Consistent spacing
 - Leave blank space
- Keep it clean and simple
- Proofread

✦ Tone

- Formal
- Informal
- Semi-formal

✦ Match the tone

- Could I disturb you for a minute?
- Can I ask you something?
- You got a sec?

✦ Structuring documents

- Introduction
 - What you are writing about/purpose
- Body
 - Main part
 - Can be any length
- Conclusion
 - Summarize key “take-aways”
 - Do not include new information

Business Writing

- Letters
- Memos
- Emails
- Chat messaging and texting

Letters

When to use	Formal communication that doesn't need to be an ongoing conversation. For example, sharing a minor update on an account or contract.
Tone	Formal
Audience	Internal to your company or externally to the public.
Method	Mailed, couriered or attached to email
Length	•Opening and closing paragraphs no more than 4 lines •Body paragraphs no longer than 10 lines •No limit to how many body paragraphs
Structure	•Specific heading and closure information is required

Dear Ms. Turnbull

Re: Messy Writing and Strict Marking Hurt Student Health

It has come to our attention that you are marking your students' written work extremely strictly.

Normally, this would not be a bad thing as your job is to help students become stronger writers. However, dozens of St. Lawrence College students have reported to us that your written comments on their assignments are so shambolic that some have suffered fainting spells while trying to understand them.

It is well known that you are a passionate teacher and that you care deeply about your students; however, you must clean up your writing if you want your comments to help students improve.

We hope this warning serves as a helpful reminder, Ms. Ayearst. Please do not hesitate to contact us if you have questions.

Sincerely yours,

F. Pitbull

Memorandums (Memos)

When to use	If many people within the company need to be given the same information, or a formal record of the information needs to be filed.
Tone	Formal
Audience	Internal to your company
Method	Printed or attached to email
Length	•Opening and closing paragraphs no more than 4 lines •Body paragraphs no longer than 10 lines •No limit to how many body paragraphs
Structure	•Specific heading and closure information is required

Example Memo

MEMORANDUM

TO: CALLA TURNBULL

FROM: FABIAN PITBULL

DATE: MAY 6, 2022

SUBJECT: COMM34 - NEW MEMO FORMAT

Below you will find a brief checklist for ensuring that your memos are attractive and follow business principles.

The key to attractive memos

If readers are to digest a message, it must not only be written concisely, it must also be formatted in an attractive manner. Here are five keys to creating attractive memos:

1. Use white space effectively by keeping introductory and concluding paragraphs four lines or less and body paragraphs ten lines or less.
2. Use short sentences, usually 15 to 24 words and no more than 30.
3. Use block format.
4. Use bullets if writing a list of three or more items.
5. Consider subheadings to draw the reader's eye.

I hope that this checklist is written clearly enough for you to use and teach to your students. Please let me know if I can help any further when we meet for our regularly scheduled program meeting next Thursday at 3 p.m. in Cathy's office.

Emails

When to use	When the information can be shared in a less formal way (eg. day-to-day communications) or to engage in a discussion. When the information being shared is short and straightforward
Tone	Semi-formal
Audience	Internal or external, to a group or to just one person
Method	Electronic, can include attachments
Length	• Opening and closing paragraphs no more than 4 lines • Body paragraphs no longer than 5 lines • Short sentences — less than 3 lines (or 30 words)
Structure	• Subject line • Salutation • Closing

Chat messaging or texting

When to use	For private, internal communications. If the company/your supervisor has requested it or you need an urgent response.
Tone	Semi-formal or informal — if in doubt, match the tone of the other parties in the chat
Audience	Internal, usually to just one person
Method	Electronic
Length	The shorter the better
Structure	No formal structure

Example Chat

I just got a message from Melinda, she's going to be 5 minutes late to our video meeting. She wants us to go ahead without her.
